SPANISH DRIVE FOR RIFF KEY POSITION LAUNCHED TUESDAY

Tribes Preparing To Greet
Invaders But Are Discourage.

Paris, Sept. 22.—The Spanish drive for Ajdir, key position of Abd-el-Krim's strength in eastern Morocco—starts today.

From Moro Nuevo, where the Spanish forces are stationed will start the advance designed as one blade of the scissors movement by which French and Spanish hope to sever the Riffian chieftain's power, according to Madrid dispatches to Le Matin.

Marshal Petain's steadily advancing French troops form the other blade of the scissors.

General Primo de Rivera's decision to send Spanish cavalry divisions to the French front to co-operate with Petain's forces, has been approved by the directory, according to the Madrid advices.

Generals Fernandez Yperes and Saro will direct the movement from the Riffian coast island toward Ajdir. Primo himself has been reported at Alhucemas bay to direct the campaign.

Madrid, Sept. 22.—The official Spanish communique today showed Abd-el-Krim has made thorough preparations to meet the Spanish and advance from Alhucemas bay.

Spanish agents in the western zone reported that the Riffian allies in that section were extremely discouraged, the communique said.

The Kabylas tribes, disheartened by the loss of four leaders in recent fighting, were reported disbanding. But Abd-el-Krim, eager to hold these tribes in line and at the same time place another obstacle in the path of the Spanish advance in the east, sought to transfer the Kabylas tribes in the eastern zone.

General Primo de Rivera has gone from Tetuan to Alhucemas bay and the Spanish veteran troops rested after their successes in the west, have been sent to the eastern Riffian coast for the new offensive.

Before embarking for Alhucemas, Primo told the war correspondents confidently:

"I won't return to Tetuan before the end of September. I am planning then to go to Madrid for the fiestas."

BIG MIMIC WARFARE STARTS IN BRITAIN TO TRY OUT WEAPONS

Army Maneuvers To Last Four Days Are Under Way

Aldershot, Eng., Sept. 22.—The greatest mimic war yet held in Britain began at dawn today at Salisbury Plain, training ground of the British Army, when the first army maneuvers held in England since 1913 commenced.

Nothing approaching the scale of the maneuvers has yet been seen in Britain, and those responsible are striving to make the conditions under which they are being held approximate as nearly as can be imagined to those which may be expected in the next great war.

Lasting for four days, the maneuvers according to the army authorities, are being held not so much for the opportunities they hold for training the men "as for the purpose of trying out the giant developments in weapons and appliances that have taken place since the World War." With this in view all the latest developments in guns, tanks, aeroplanes and field wireless were on trial today.

There are two armies; an Eastern force commanded by General Sir Philip Chetwode, and a Western force under General Alexander Godley. The Eastern force consists of a cavalry brigade, three regular infantry divisions, one battalion of tanks, four aeroplanes squadrons, and the usual appendages of any army in full fighting order. The Western force consists of one cavalry division, one territorial infantry brigade, one regular infantry division, one battalion of tanks, an armored car company, four field squadrons, and the usual complement.

TRAFFIC SCHOOL IS ENDORSED AS MEANS OF AIDING AUTOIST

Suggestion of Oliver Belden, secretary of the Greene County Auto Club, that Xenia follow the example of other cities and formulate a "traffic school" for motorists has been taken under consideration by City Manager S. O. Hale.

Manager Hale approves of the plan and along with Secretary Belden and E. D. Smith, judge of Municipal Court, expects to visit Springfield some time this week to obtain additional information on the system. Springfield recently placed the "traffic school" in operation.

In other cities, traffic courts are held for one hour on certain nights of each week presided over by an authority on traffic regulations to which all motorists receiving fines for traffic violations are sentenced to attend for a certain period of time.

"The idea of the traffic court is not to impose additional punishment on the motorist but to furnish him with information and an explanation of the law he has probably inadvertently violated," according to Manager Hale.

The "school" is open to all motorists at all times and is for their benefit to obtain a thorough knowledge of the various rules. Officials do not wish to work a hardship on the motorist and it is the aim to have each work in harmony, it is said.

It is considered possible the plan may be introduced at the commission meeting Thursday night. Officials are undecided whether an effort will be made to place such a school in operation here.

Other cities in the state have adopted the "traffic court" system and have endorsed it as one of the best possible schemes to educate the motorists and safe-guard the public.

FRIENDS SAY SHE IS PICTURE OF HEALTH

"I cannot give Tanlac too many thanks, for it brought back my health and strength after everything else failed, and nearly all hope of getting well had left me," is the grateful statement of Mrs. Sarah Duckett.

"Stomach trouble and rheumatism had been gradually weakening me down for 20 years. At times I ached all over, could not walk without limping, and felt too weak to get out of my chair. Sleep was almost out of the question and I was nervous, discouraged and despondent.

"When I began taking Tanlac I was down to 120 lbs. but I now weigh 160 and haven't an ailment in the world. This is what Tanlac did for me four years ago and since then I have never been without it in the house. I take a bottle now and then and everyone says I am the picture of health."

OPPORTUNITY SCHOOL HAS IMPORTANT AIM SAYS SUPERINTENDENT ON EVE OF DRIVE

Commenting on the need of public support of the one-day drive for $1,500, sponsored by the Federated Parent-Teacher Association, next Thursday, H. C. Pendry, city superintendent of schools, has issued the following statement in support of the school and its work:

"The existence of a school that is instituted and operated under the system and with the aims of the Xenia Opportunity school deserves the active support of every citizen of the city for two reasons. From the time of the origin of the entire public school idea, the notion of economic gain has been the core of educational discussion; by economic gain, is meant not particularly the increased portion of goods that will accrue to the individual who is trained in the school, but the gain to society from his increased productivity.

"The Opportunity school as a more or less recent innovation has met the problem with very satisfactory results, during its few years of operation it has contributed many times the cost and trouble involved. A list of former pupils of the opportunity school who are now engaged in occupations which give them a good living and the services from which are of value to the community shows that the school has accomplished the purpose for which it was created.

"To anticipate the future without further reference to past accomplishments, let us consider that if two pupils out of the thirty or thirty-five are able to reach the point when their earnings amount to $1,000 per annum—an attainment that has already been reached—those two pupils will have increased their value to society in twenty years more than $20,000. It is too much to hope that all students in any school will reach the highest possible attainment; but if only the small part of the enrollment that was mentioned above can attain as much, the small investment is amply repaid many times over.

"To leave the children of the Opportunity School in the regular classes is to bar them forever from any chance to progress. The history of education before the day of special classes is a pitiful story of repeated failure and consequent disappointment withdrawal from school, chronic idleness and potential delinquency. An Opportunity School will not remove all these dangers, but it will help to a remarkable degree. When an environment is created that will teach the will to work and methods of working; that will not leave an individual at any disadvantage, that will bring encouragement and hope where none

DEMANDS JURY TO HEAR TRIAL HERE

Jury trial of W. A. Keller, 15 June Street, Dayton, on a charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated was set for October 2 in Probate Court by Judge S. C. Wright, Tuesday morning. He was released under bond.

Faced with two separate charges of driving an auto while intoxicated, Keller demanded a jury trial on the first count.

He is scheduled to be arraigned before J. E. Jones, Justice of the Peace, Tuesday afternoon on an identical charge.

Keller was arrested two weeks ago twice in the same day by Special Deputy Sheriff Dilver Belden following an automobile collision and another near-collision at Trebein in which the Dayton man was the alleged offender.

INQUEST IN DEATH SET FOR WEDNESDAY

Coroner R. L. Haines, Jamestown, will hold an inquest Wednesday morning at the Court House, in the death of Nellie Koors, 16, Dayton girl, who was killed when the motorcycle in which she was riding with a party, collided with a farm wagon near Byron, September 9.

FIRST DANCE HALL CASE IN COUNTY IS DISMISSED IN COURT

A charge of operating a public dance hall without a permit against Ralph Tippy, of Osborn, was dismissed by Judge S. C. Wright in Probate Court Tuesday morning because of insufficient evidence. The dismissal was made upon the recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney J. Carl Marshall.

The state found it had no case against Tippy because the definition of a "public dance" has never been determined judicially.

Tippy was arrested in Osborn two weeks ago in a raid conducted by Deputy Sheriffs John Baughn and George Spencer and Sidney Cornelius, marshal of Bath Township.

The arrest of Tippy for operation of a dance hall without a permit was the first to be made in Greene County since the recent dance law enacted by the last General Assembly went into effect.

Circumstances surrounding the case made it difficult to determine whether Tippy was operating a "public dance" hall because of the lack of a state Supreme Court ruling on the subject. Attorney F. L. Johnson represented Tippy.

SHADE WINNER BUT WALKER IS AWARDED VERDICT IN BOUT

New York, Sept. 22.—By the gossamer thread of mere circumstance, Mickey Walker remained as welterweight champion of the world today after fifteen dazzling rounds with Dave Shade at the Yankee stadium last night. It was the greatest welterweight fight of a generation and the winner lost.

The winner by every attribute of the ring, was Dave Shade, the California challenger, but two judges and a referee gravely decided to the contrary.

Shade last night was the greatest fighter, inch for inch and pound for pound, the writer has seen in years. He has speed, the punch, generalship and the ability to shed punishment with a laugh; with one possible exception, he had everything a fighter needs to gain a rightful decision in a New York ring.

The exception was his failure to recognize a local weakness for exaggerating the importance of a last inning rally.

At the end of fourteen rounds, James E. Farley, chairman of the New York commission, polled the ringside critics for their verdict of the winner, for reasons known only to himself. It is understood the vote was overwhelmingly pro-Shade.

ROAD PETITION IS NOW PLACED ON FILE

A petition containing names of thirty-three property owners whose land adjoins the Cincinnati Pike, has been filed with County Commission in which it is pointed out that the public convenience requires widening the road to a width of sixty feet.

The Columbus and Cincinnati Pike known as Inter-County Highway No. 6, is to be remodeled into a hard surface road from the Xenia corporation line to the Warren County line a distance of eight and one-half miles.

The total cost of the improvement will be approximately $230,000.

BRIDGE IS WRECKED
Toledo, O., Sept. 22.—The Ash Con-sault bridge, across the Maumee river, is out of commission today as a result of the steamer Yosemite crashing into the west span next to the draw period.

KLAN CONCLAVE TO BE HELD SATURDAY; PARADE IS PLANNED

A parade will be staged at 8 o'clock Saturday evening in which thousands of hooded members of the order are expected to participate.

Word has also been received that Clyde W. Osborn Youngstown, grand dragon of the Ohio Klan, will be present at the convocation with his official staff including the grand titans of provinces 1 and 6.

The afternoon program at the Fairgrounds will consist of athletic contests and games followed by a program of the women's organization of the order in charge of Mrs. McCreary of Columbus, head of the state klanswomen.

The Rev. F. P. George, of Columbus will deliver the principal speech of the occasion following the parade at the Fairgrounds on the subject "Americanism."

City Manager S. O. Hale has granted a permit to stage the parade Saturday.

Prizes will be donated for the best Klan bands attending the convocation. L. A. Wagner, local Klan official says 30,000 members of the order will attend the meeting.

OUR "VICTORY."

THE British nation, which takes an honorable pride in its long mastery of the sea and its equally long roll of naval heroes, has never permitted the Victory, flagship of the greatest of British admirals, to fall into decay. The old ship, rebuilt as often as the passage of time required, still lies in Portsmouth Harbor, a floating monument to the glorious history of the British navy, a brass plate on the quarter-deck marking the spot where Nelson fell, dying, at Trafalgar.

We, too, often have our venerable relic of past victories, our symbol of prowess on the sea, the frigate Constitution—"Old Ironsides," as it was affectionately called a century ago. The old ship lies, as she has lain for years, at the dock side in the Navy Yard at Boston. Thousands of patriotic Americans have visited her there, have stood reverently on the decks where Prebel and Hull and Bainbridge once stood, have gone down into her lonely cabins, once crowded with life and not unfamiliar with death, and have looked curiously at the old guns, so tiny beside the modern monsters, with which great victories were won. Twice in the past, as the timbers of the old ship have grown unserviceable, it has been proposed to dismantle her and break her up. But the American people have never been willing to see her destroyed. Oliver Wendell Holmes' ringing poem Old Ironsides roused the public sentiment that saved her in 1833. There needed no such stimulant in 1877. Now again the Constitution must be rebuilt from stem to stern if it is to be preserved. It will cost half million dollars to do it, but we are confident that the nation will see that the money is raised. Congress might fitly have appropriated the necessary sum; but, since it has not, the people themselves will see to it that the historic vessel remains afloat.

The Constitution was built in Boston and launched in 1797. She saw active service in that lively naval war by which we put an end to the scandalous exactions of the Barbary pirates, and took part in three bombardments of Tripoli. Early in the War of 1812 she made a remarkable escape from a whole squadron of pursuing British vessels off the Jersey coast, her extraordinary height and breadth of sail spread giving her a speed, especially in light airs, that no British ship could equal. Although only 172 feet on the water line, she carried a press of canvas almost as great as the much larger clipper ships of the fifties, which were, like herself, remarkable examples of Yankee sagacity in ship architecture.

In August, 1812, the Constitution fought her famous battle with the Guerriere, which she left a total wreck after an engagement of thirty minutes—an exploit that stunned the British navy and thrilled the United States from end to end. Not long after she outmaneuvered and outfought the frigate Java, which she captured off the coast of Brazil. In other battles she captured the Picton, the Cyane and the Levant. In every case the cleverness of her design and the daring seamanship of her commanders made her easily the superior of the enemy ships.

The War of 1812 was not a wholly glorious affair. Except for Jackson's great victory at New Orleans, our military campaigns were mostly blunders. But on the sea we gained victories that we still recall with honest pride; for they were the fruit of the skillful seamanship of American captains and the dogged courage of American sailormen. Of these victories "Old Ironsides" is the enduring symbol. May she never sink beneath the waves or, worse still, fall a victim to the knacker's tools, so long as the United States remains a nation!

HELPING THE SCHOOLS.

PARENTS of school children are often told that they must co-operate with the schools. But frequently they do not see how they can do that. If they attempt to help the children learn their lessons, their old fashioned ideas may not be of any assistance to these modern learners.

There are several practical things that the parents can do, however. One is to insist that the pupils be punctual in attendance. Many children fall behind because they are allowed to absent themselves for trifling reasons. Parents are doing their young people a serious injury when they encourage them to stay out for such purposes.

Every time they are late at the beginning of sessions, they injure discipline. If the teachers can have every child present at the first moment of school, except as prevented by illness, a long step toward the session's work will be taken.

Just Folks

BY EDWARD A. GUEST

OURS
We call them ours. There seems no better word—
Our friends, our wives, our little children small,
And yet we know God rules and owns them all;
They are but ours until His voice is heard.

Once on a time we had a lovely child,
We called her ours. We knew no other phase Possessing her made radiant all our days,

Our lives were bright with beauty when she smiled.

And then 'twixt dawn and dusk God's angel came,
Touched the sweet eyes of her that we possessed,
Folded her hands upon her lovely breast
And left us but her memory and a name.

These things are ours. Silver and gold and land,
Jewels and baubles which the hand may clutch,
But the glad spirits which we love so much
Are always God's, awaiting His command.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES

"Noname: Here is a recipe for which one of our column sisters recently asked: Banbury Tarts: Make a rich pie crust and shape it in small tarts, crinkling it around the edge with a fork. Leave one side open to insert this filling: Put one-half cup of finely-cut seedless raisins in the top of your double boiler with one-half cup of dried currants and four large figs cut small. Add four teaspoons of orange juice, and also add one cup of granulated sugar mixed with two teaspoons of flour and two teaspoons of cold water. Cook over boiling water for 20 minutes, then remove from range and stir in one-half cup of walnut meats broken small. This will fill 25 tarts. The tarts will keep for a long time; simply reheat them in a paper bag to freshen them before serving."

Answer: I think all of our readers will agree with me that it was kind of you to send us this splendid recipe.

Mrs. B. W.: "Some time ago a reader requested this recipe: Welsh Cookies: Rub one cup of lard and bread flour with the fingers. Then stir in two cups of granulated sugar, three teaspoons of baking powder, a pinch of salt, two cups of dried currants, two beaten eggs, and enough sweet milk to make a soft dough (for I cannot give the exact amount). Add one-half teaspoon of ground nutmeg, roll out, cut with a cookie cutter, and bake on a greased griddle, turning when the under side is brown."

Answer: This seems to be our lucky week. I know that the housekeeper who wanted this recipe, will be delighted. Thank you for it.

A Reader: "I liked your answer to 'Outraged Housekeeper,' who said that cats were worthless animals. I also am a great lover of pussy, and though not blessed with much of this world's wealth, I support seven cats—three were stray kittens, and the rest born on the place. Some of them are great catchers of rats and mice. They all love me like children, and they are company to me, for I am practically alone in the world."

Answer: I am sure our other readers will find it interesting to hear about the pleasure you take in your pets. For, that is what we all are seeking: ways to make our home life happier, as well as more efficient.

SPECULATING IN FUTURES

We are born speculators. Of one sort or another. I passed along the street the other day, hurrying to a shop where I had important business. I was buried in thought and ideas were rumpling about in my brain.

Just then I noticed a great crowd that blocked the sidewalk. I joined the throng. Even the little ideas that were so busy in my brain a moment before fell over themselves to get a peep at this commotion.

It proved nothing more serious than one of those everyday street arguments over some trivial word spoken—and so I passed on.

But the crowd didn't disperse. It was speculating. Hoping for a real fight, perhaps, or the merry dinging of a police patrol that might arrive at any moment, inviting the contestants to tell their differences to "the judge."

As for myself, I cannot look at anything without bringing my speculating instinct into apt and concise action. I cannot look at a flower, or a flying crow without speculating about some phase of life. And we are all speculating upon what becomes of us after this life has finished its tasks.

We are, natural speculators, in futures.

This is a good idea. It keeps rust by the storm.

from accumulating upon our brains and our thinking apparatus from becoming afire and disorganized.

Read the stock market page of any daily newspaper and you will, perhaps, see something of the fire that has burned many a finger and sent many a man and woman to bed all unstrung and worried. Proving that it is vastly more healthful to speculate on life and its little things and revelations than to become the slave to those who smile up their sleeves at those who like to lie down with the "lamias."

If people would speculate upon themselves more this world would have fewer heart aches. And more rich and happy people.

Trouble Caused by Getting Up Too Soon. Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Taleville, New York. — "I thought it would interest you to know what benefit I have derived from taking your medicine. A few days after the birth of my third child I got up too quick. Then just before my fifth child was born I had inflammation of the bladder and displacement. Seeing your advertisement in a Liverpool (England) paper I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and that was the best confinement I had. Whenever I feel run-down I always take the Vegetable Compound as a tonic. We have just removed from Brockville (Canada) so I was pleased when the store ordered the medicine for me and I got it today. I would not be without it for any price and I recommend it to ladies around here because I feel so sure it will benefit any woman who takes it." — Mrs. AGNES WIGNALL, Taleville, New York.

PENNSY PRESIDENT NOW AT RETIREMENT AGE AFTER 54 YEARS

Samuel Rea, president of The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, reached the age of 70 Monday and under the regulations of the company will automatically retire from active service.

Mr. Rea's railroad career covers a period of 54 years and he is the first president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to reach the age of 70 in its active service.

"No man should ask for more than employment," was one of his maxims. "When that is given it is up to him to do the rest." He was forced to put this theory to a test very early in his life. Born at Hollidaysburg in Pennsylvania in 1855, the death of his father thirteen years later made it necessary for him to seek a position clerking in stores and working on farms. His education as a railroad engineer began when he was not quite sixteen; from James McCrea, later to become his predecessor as president of the Pennsylvania System, he secured a job as chairman and rodman on that railroad in 1871. When the panic of 1873 forced the railroads to limit their personnel, Mr. Rea entered the office of the Hollidaysburg Iron and Nail Company.

Two years later he re-entered the service of the Pennsylvania. When promotion seemed slow in 1889, he resumed to go to Baltimore as vice-president of the Maryland Central Railroad and chief engineer of the Baltimore Belt Railroad. This latter he located and put under construction, and it is now a part of the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio. In 1892 he accepted a call from President Roberts of the Pennsylvania Railroad to become assistant to the president. Here he was responsible for the construction and promotion of new lines, as well as for general financial work of the Pennsylvania subsidiary companies; and later he was given charge of the engineering and accounting departments.

At one time he was president, vice-president, or director of over one hundred companies in the Pennsylvania System, which number he was constantly reducing through mergers and climbing step by step through almost every department of the system, he was elected president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company on January 1, 1913.

RE-APPRAISAL OF PROPERTY DELAYED UNTIL NEXT YEAR

Re-appraisal of real estate in Greene County as well as in all other counties in the state has been postponed until next year. It was definitely learned Tuesday.

The state tax commission Monday yielded to certain county auditors who have defied the body in refusing to conduct the appraisal this year, and authorized deferment of the project for one year.

The order affects all but thirteen counties which have had re-valuations in recent years.

Greene County will not be harder hit by the order than in previous years. County Auditor R. O. Wead has not received official notice of the postponement.

Compulsory appraisal of real estate in all counties every six years beginning this year was provided in the McDonald law originally enacted by the last General Assembly. Governor Donahue's veto of the bill was overridden and announcement was made that appraisals would be made a requirement this year.

Many county auditors from political standpoints are well pleased with the victory which is virtually in disobedience to the law. Tax payments will not be made until December 1926 and January, 1927, under the next valuations, it is said.

The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted

By GERTRUDE S. de WENTWORTH-JAMES

SYNOPSIS

It is Bob Manning's twenty-first birthday. In the morning he has gone to his parents' bedroom and received the congratulations of father and mother while the former arranged his necktie. While he is there he hears a long drawn "oo hee" and rushes out to be greeted by Marjorie Patterson, their neighbor's daughter. She is at the top of a ladder against the wall separating the two properties and Bob climbs up a ladder on the Manning's side.

CHAPTER II—Continued

"Bob, it's your birthday, isn't it?" she demanded eagerly. He conceded the fact, but guardedly, as if suspicious of the use to which she would put the information.

"I've a birthday present for you." Curiosity seemed at last to have awakened a real interest within him. Yet, he looked into those beautiful eyes and regarded the palpitating eagerness with which she concealed her hands behind her and indicated that he must choose, with calmness, yes, with disapproval.

"Oh what's the good of that,—you are going to give it to me anyway, aren't you?"

"But it's more fun guessing," she pleaded with a look which might have bewitched a saint.

"Oh, well," he condescended, but when he had chosen both hands in succession and evoked nothing better than a tantalizing giggle, he grew suspicious. "You're switching,—that's what you're doing."

Caught red handed in her villainy, she finally produced a package and handed it to him.

"Sure it is now, he inspected the dainty parcel with the tormenting slowness of one who delights in prolonging anticipation.

"Hurry," she urged. And when he failed to act, in her eagerness reached forth and snapped the string, to draw forth a long, crocheted bag which she dangled before his eyes with pride.

"What is it?" he demanded wonderingly.

"That's for your golf clubs,—I crocheted it myself."

"Golf clubs?" Surely Bob's heart was of adamant for he burst into laughter.

"You don't like it?"

"Ah, there was a tender spot in Bob's breast. Touched by her hurt tones and the disappointment in her eyes, his mirth died.

"It's all right."

"You are sure you really like it?" she persisted, half convinced.

"Certainly, it's splendid."

"Well then," said Marjorie boldly but stricken with something like a blush. "Seeing it's your birthday, I suppose you can kiss me."

"Kiss you?" Here was surprise when there should have been eagerness. Furthermore the alacrity with which a fond lover should have grasped the opportunity to taste the savor of so sweet a maiden's lips was strangely absent. As she closed her eyes and waited on the ladder with puckered lips, he sat motionless gazing at them as if held in the clutches of a spell.

"Yes,—come on," and to give even greater expression to her desires, she leaned towards him until the ladder shifted ominously.

For an instant longer he hesitated, still staring as if spellbound at those rosy lips so temptingly presented for his enjoyment, then, as if drawn by their witchery, he, too, leaned slowly forward. So slowly indeed, that Marjorie felt it incumbent upon her to expedite matters by advancing even further.

Alas, ladders are very tricky contraptions and this one was no better than its kindred. It shifted, slid and finally just as Bob was upon the point of sampling the rich fruit before him, it toppled and fell, carrying Marjorie down with it.

From his safe vantage point on the wall, Bob looked down at the shaken figure below.

"Are you hurt, Marjorie?" She gazed up and in her eyes were surprise and ruffled dignity, yes, and perhaps disappointment.

"Don't you laugh,—don't you dare laugh, Bob Manning!"

"I'm not laughing," he protested promptly, and then his eyes strayed homeward. "But I'd better be thinking about getting back—back to breakfast if you are all right. It must be breakfast time." And Bob disappeared behind the wall.

It was breakfast time. Eileen, having instructed the maid to serve the meal, had paused to give a deft touch to the flowers on the table and to glance about the breakfast room to see that all was in order.

It was a beautiful room with a lovely view of rolling country where the great windows gave upon the terrace and formed a setting in perfect keeping with Eileen's mood this morning. In her happiness lurked no cloud or shadow as her husband, carrying a newspaper, entered.

"Good news—the best of news," he cried with an air of great satisfaction.

She glanced quickly at him. "About the election?"

John nodded.

"A careful poll of ten districts indicates an overwhelming sentiment in favor of my re-election. Of course, the Star has supported me from the first, but it is a conservative sheet. What's more, its estimate of the situation supports my own. It seems to me that I am to have little real opposition. But," his face sobered, "you never can count on anything in such matters until the actual returns are in. Now that I'm in the race, I want to win, not so much for the office as to get a confirmation of my policies from the people."

She regarded him with undisguised pride. Perfectly groomed, he was now the picture of a successful man. A strong, forceful man, with character written in every line of his face.

"Of course, you will win, John," she told him confidently.

"Where's Bob?" he demanded, becoming aware of his son's vacant chair. "Has that infant vampire still got him in her clutches?"

"Clutches," retorted Eileen severely. "I suspect she is not detaining him from his breakfast against his will. She must appeal to him as quite agreeable to make him miss an opportunity to eat."

"Well, he told me last night that he wanted to go into town with me this morning. Regardless of the allurements of his charmer, he had better hurry. I am due in court at nine o'clock."

"Mr. Bledsoe, to see you, sir," interrupted the maid.

Surprised, a shadow clouded John's face as he glanced at the proffered card.

"Isn't his son's trial this morning?" asked Eileen, quickly.

He nodded and turned to the girl with decision.

"Tell Mr. Bledsoe, I am very sorry but I cannot see him."

Eileen viewed him with surprise and stopped the maid with a gesture before she reached the door.

"Oh John, you can't mean that—hadn't you better see him?" she pleaded.

He shook his head, firm in his course.

"There is not the slightest reason why I should see him, Eileen, and many why I should not. The interview would not only be unpleasant but a waste of his time as well as mine."

Filled with sympathy, Eileen rested her hand upon his sleeve.

"Poor man—please see him. John, there might be something—er—at least it would be more courteous than to refuse him out right."

"Courteous," a smile softened the determination in his face. "I'm afraid the law is not always courteous, dear." Then, as he looked down at her, "However, if you wish it—"

FORTY YEARS IN FURNITURE BUSINESS SEES MANY CHANGES IN STYLES SAYS R. D. ADAIR

Celebrating his fortieth year in the furniture business in Xenia, R. D. Adair can review numerous changes 4000 yearly; Berkeley and Gay, High Point, N. C., with products amounting to $45,000,000 this year; Rockford III., with a yearly production of $25,400,000.

Of the large number of business houses in the city today, less than a dozen can boast the business history of Mr. Adair. He can remember only the Tiffany Jewelry Store, John North Plumbing Shop, Fetz' Grocery, H. E. Schmidt Grocery, Hutchison and Gibney Company and Charters Jewelry Store as the business houses operating that length of time.

"There has been great changes in the furniture business since I started forty years ago," said Mr. Adair, recently, addressing the Rotary Club. "Even in a city the size of Xenia we must show a variety and style of furniture undreamed of twenty-five or thirty years ago. The wonderfully equipped stores and displays in some of our large cities, if existing thirty years ago, would be classed as nothing short of a museum or World's Fair."

Mr. Adair has witnessed a remarkably interesting evolution of furniture styles and types. "Strange to relate, forty years ago walnut was the predominating furniture; massive heavy bed and dining room furniture, marble tops on the dressers, washstands and sideboards. Now after being practically off the market for thirty or thirty-five years, it is again the favorite furniture wood."

"Oak succeeded walnut in its many and various finishes. First, the antique oak finish, then along with the antique came the Sixteenth Century or shaded finish. This came the Golden Oak that had a long run and still is used in a small way. Along with the Golden Oak we had the fumed oak, a nut brown finish, also the early English, a black finish. Fumed oak and early English were massive style, straight line and entirely plain. That kind of furniture has passed away entirely."

"I would judge it was from about 1912 to within a year or two mahogany was most sought after in furniture and today only second to walnut. With the advantage of mahogany and walnut, the furniture manufacturers brought out designs in the historic period of furniture."

"Period furniture is designated in two ways: first, by the name of the ruling monarch or the reign at the time that the furniture was first created and in vogue, as Louis XVI in France, William and Mary in England, the Italian Renaissance and the Empire Period; second by the name of the designer of the furniture such as Chippendale, our own Duncan Phyfe, Heppelwhite, Sheraton and Adam."

"American walnut is recognized as the premier cabinet wood of the world," Mrs. Adair said. "Its range is over a million square miles of territory found in thirty-two states. At present rate of consumption the available supply will last thirty-six years." Beach has won its place as a fine cabinet wood, he says. Mahogany is the "king of woods." This tree grows in the tropical jungles, tall and straight, many more than 100 feet high. The first of its branches are sixty or more feet from the ground. All that we have is imported from Mexico, Central America, West Africa and West India.

The chief American furniture manufacturing centers are Grand Rapids, Mich., where sixty-eight factories turn out products to the value of $45,000,000 yearly; Berkeley and Gay, High Point, N. C., with products amounting to $45,000,000 this year; Rockford III., with a yearly production of $25,400,000.

The first furniture market was held in Cincinnati. They are now held in Chicago in the largest building in the world, with 750 displays of $173 buyers. Grand Rapids has 400 outside displays of 4,000 buyers.

"No other business has a more direct bearing on the happiness and welfare of all our people," declares Mr. Adair.

MRS. PERRY FLETCHER CALLED SUDDENLY

Mrs. Laura Hardy Fletcher, 23, wife of Perry L. Fletcher, died suddenly at her home, two miles west of New Burlington, Monday afternoon. Death was pronounced due to a hemorrhage of the brain. Mrs. Fletcher complained of a sudden pain in her head and passed away shortly afterward.

She had recently undergone mastoid operations but was thought recovered. Mrs. Fletcher leaves her husband, one daughter, Helen, 13 and one son, Perry, 10. Her father, and three brothers of Jamestown, also survive.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the home in charge of the Rev. W. E. Bogan, pastor of the Friends Church at Spring Valley. Interment will be made in the South Charleston Cemetery.

Mrs. Fletcher was vice president of the New Burlington Parent-Teacher Association. She was also a member of Pledge of Xenia D. P. Council and Zanetta Council, D. of P., this city.

Attorney Forest Dunkle has received a lesson about lighting a match around gasoline.

While getting oil and gas at the White Rock filling station, Fairground Avenue and Detroit Street, Saturday, Mr. Dunkle thoughtlessly struck a match while too near his automobile tank.

The flame caused a blaze in the tank of the machine which was fortunately extinguished. This blaze was not put out however, before the Fire Department was called by frightened bystanders. The machine was only slightly damaged.

PROPERTY OWNERS WANT MAIN STREET IN ALPHA PAVED

A petition of property owners asking for the construction of a road to be known as the Alpha Main Street Road in Beaver Creek Township has been filed with the county Board of Commissioners and will be given a hearing at the Wednesday morning session.

The petition provides for the road to be macadamized and be begun at the Dayton and Xenia Pike line through Alpha and end at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks. The road would be twenty-four feet wide. The petitioners constitute more than fifty-one percent of the land owners to be specifically assessed for the improvement.

The petitioners requested that compensation, damages, costs and expenses incidental to the construction be apportioned by the following method: Fifty per cent to be paid from the proceeds of any levy or levies for road purposes upon the grand duplicate of taxable property in the county; thirty percent paid in cash out of the road fund of Beaver Creek Township; and twenty percent assessed against real estate abutting on the improvement.

The property owners suggested that the road be named "The Alpha Main Street Road Improvement."

BRINGING UP FATHER

UNDERTAKERS SERVE HUMANITY IN TIME OF SADNESS FUNERAL DIRECTORS TOLD AT MEET

Xenia funeral directors were hosts at a joint meeting of the Fourth and Tenth Districts of the Ohio Funeral Directors' Association, at the Elks' Club, Monday night.

More than 100 funeral directors and their wives attended the banquet meeting. Funeral directors were present from Greene, Clinton, Highland, Warren, Fayette Counties comprising the tenth district and Montgomery, Preble and Butler, the fourth. The Rev. W. H. Tilford, pastor of the Xenia Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation. An elaborate chicken dinner was served.

Committee in charge was composed of R. M. Neeld and J. H. Whitmer, Xenia; Harry Littleton, Sabina and Ernest Oswald, Lebanon.

E. T. Snyder, Mount Sterling, second vice president of the state association, presided. He introduced Yaro H. Naseck, Cleveland, president of the state association, who delivered a short address. Mr. Naseck outlined the work of the association and urged directors to knit their work together and co-operate for further forward endeavor. He mentioned the national convention to be held soon, when an Ohio man, Ferd Shoedinger, will be a candidate for president.

Professor C. F. Calloway, Bloomington, Ill., who has a national reputation as a banquet speaker, and who, was formerly a funeral director, delivered the main address of the evening. He spoke of the ideals and purpose of the funeral directors and declared their reward for service is not money but heart response.

He augmented his address with clever stories and brought out many forceful points. He declared the need of the funeral directors is not finer funeral homes and rolling stock, but men who are destined to serve humanity in time of sadness. The general intelligence of the men in the profession should be on a higher plane, he said, and declared that all directors not of a high standard should be eliminated from the work and all fraud exposed.

"Every funeral director must sell himself to himself and then to the people," was his statement. He emphasized the ideals of the profession and said that whereas the directors formerly were looked on as "men who buried the dead" they are now regarded as "directors of memorial services." He cautioned against the general public idea of the high cost of funerals and said that with the great overhead expense of the directors the profit was correspondingly small.

The committee in charge of the meeting was given a rising vote of thanks, following the motion made by Rall Whitmer, Dayton. Walter McCoy, president of the fourth district, Middletown, gave a short talk, announcing the next meeting of that district at Hamilton, soon. A. L. Hanna, Blanchester, of the Tenth District, announced the meeting of that district at New Vienna the third Monday in October.

Talks were also given by I. R. Whitmer, Dayton past state president and A. O. Clark, Springfield, for many years salesman for the Springfield Metallic Casket Company, who is leaving soon to make his home in Florida.

MEMORIAL DISPLAY OF DODDS COMPANY WINS COMPLIMENTS

Display of memorials of the George Dodds and Sons Granite Company at the recent exhibition held in Cleveland, O., auditorium is highly complimented in a review of the exhibit conducted in the August number of The Monument and Cemetery Review. The following comment was made on the Dodds' exhibit:

"Without question the most elaborate exhibit shown at the convention was that of the Dodds Bros. Granite Company, quarriers and manufacturers of Milford, Mass., who filled seven booths with their novel and very attractive display. Besides the quality and beauty of this unusual exhibit the large size of the vases, seats and exedrae of which it was composed was of marked interest and notwithstanding the extraordinary dimensions of the individual pieces, the entire exhibit, as well as from six to twelve duplicates of some memorials, was sold from the floor.

"Tuned and polished work was the outstanding feature of the display and was seen in memorial urns and dials and drinking fountains made from Stony Creek granite, which is admitted to be one of the most unusual and beautifully colored granites known to the trade.

"Every one who visited this exceptional display was impressed with the character and quiet elegance of the memorials presented, and it almost seemed that the resources which this enterprising firm drew upon were exhaustless."
